1. Create a file. The first thing you want to do is make a layer for your image so that you can work with it. You can create an image through any image-editing program you like, but the more complex the image, the better Photoshop will do. 2. Load the image from a file on your hard drive. You can upload your image from a website, or you can use a file that's on your computer. If you upload the image from the web, you need to get the URL of the image from a website to paste in the box below. In the box below, enter your image in the file name box and select the format in which it's stored. Unless you know which image format your image was created with, your best bet is to save your image in the TIFF format, which is the native format of most scanners and photo editors. 3. Click Open to open the file. Your image opens in the Canvas window, as shown in Figure 2-1. The top of the Canvas window lists the selection tool and a few other tools, such as the Airbrush tool, which is used for adding an outline around an object in an image. You can use the Move tool or Clone Stamp tool to select areas of your image that you want to add or remove. If you don't have a selection tool available, you can use the Rectangle or Freehand tools to select areas of your image to edit. You need to select the right tool before you can use it. Some images, including those with a large amount of detail, may be difficult to work with using the Rectangle or Freehand tools. Figure 2-1: The Canvas window makes the most common tools available for manipulating images. You can also use the Select tool, which enables you to select, move, resize, and even copy and paste objects in an image. It works the same way as the Rectangle tool, but its purpose is to make a selection of an object. You can use the Zoom tool in the Toolbox to see your image at different zoom levels. ## Adding and Editing Layers Layers enable you to combine several images and add or edit any area of the image, such as blurring an area of an image to create a pseudo-outline around an object. You can create a new layer and make it the

PLANTATION, FL (WFLA) – A Florida man has been arrested for lewd or lascivious exhibition after a Palm Beach County woman said she met him through a Craigslist online posting. On Wednesday, 35-year-old Roderick Harris of West Palm Beach was charged after investigators from the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and the West Palm Beach Police Department said they traced the suspect to the Sun Coast area and, after knocking on the door, he answered, naked, and running from the home. Harris is accused of trying to solicit the nude photographs and video of a 19-year-old woman who answered the door. Shortly before his arrest, police found the woman's phone in Harris' vehicle and, by monitoring texts, Harris reportedly tried to coerce her into the nude photo. Officials said Harris has been placed on administrative leave from his employment at a construction company. I have a violin that I love very much, and I bought it for a great price from a kind shop, which makes me feel more relieved and thankful than I thought I could ever feel. I have problems that make me feel confused: Firstly, I have two different quality sound. Some days, it is fine and I can hear soft smooth sounds, but some days, it is rough and in my opinion, too noisy. For example, when I play fast, it is fine; but when I play slow, it doesn't sound good anymore, and the sound quality is probably too thick and bright. Secondly, sometimes it is just too dull, which makes the sound not nice to listen to. For example, I have tried to play fast and slow, and I get rid of this dull sound. I have not got the slightest clue on what might be
