Angry Althouse takes on another anti-equality Milwaukee County Sheriff Joe Arpaio, in a post that basically serves as a litmus test of the left's “private-property-owns-you” fears. Beep boop. Here's the important part: Everyone (except the Grand Poobah) agrees that the law applies to everyone. That's because everyone has to obey the laws. But when you're not equal before the law, you're not equal and you can't be protected by the law, period. You know, I'm sure all the people who got fried by Joe the Gulag a year ago for being "illegal" and in "poor health" and "banned from public swimming pools" would agree with that. What is it that makes them not equal before the law? It's that they didn't get to go into the homes of their neighbors and harass the people who live in those homes, and I think there are hundreds of thousands of Americans who would agree that that is a violation of their equal rights. But even if you do find this kind of thing offensive, the solution is not to say that all of us are equal before the law. It's to demand that the law be equal before the law. Which Arpaio is manifestly not. And if his jails are overcrowded, it's because he built them to hold “illegals” at a time when he was advising nobody to get an ID card and nobody was getting one. They were a good idea back then, but not now. At the time, this was a statement that he was a hard-ass, and that he was going to catch the bad guys. As it turned out, he didn’t catch any of them, and nobody much noticed. And it was John McCain who finally got him on a bad path, which ended up causing all this nativist persecution of the non-Mexicans he arrested, who are now being formally accused of crimes for the first time.
